I am delighted to issue the TCS Annual Report for the 2015 fiscal year (September 2015–August 2016). This is the first report that contains the activities and events of the TCS under the leadership of the 3rd TCS Consultative Board. This report also summarizes the fifth anniversary year of the TCS’ establishment, as the three governments finish the first round of rotations. Five years ago, the TCS was established as a result of an agreement between the three governments with the objective of producing the more efficient promotion and management of trilateral cooperation. The establishment of the TCS marks the institutionalization of trilateral cooperation and broader prospects for further developments.

Five years ago, the TCS was established as a result of an agreement between the three governments with the objective of producing the more efficient promotion and management of trilateral cooperation. The establishment of the TCS marks the institutionalization of trilateral cooperation and broader prospects for further developments. As the first Chinese Secretary-General, I am fully aware of the responsibility and obligation that have been placed on my humble shoulders.

First, I would like to take this opportunity to extend my wholehearted gratitude and appreciation to the previous two boards. The founding Board, led by Amb. SHIN Bong-kil from the ROK, created the TCS ex nihilo, established the fundamental systems and regulations of the organization, and launched a brand-new vehicle for trilateral cooperation. The second Board, led by Amb. IWATANI Shigeo from Japan, overcame initial difficulties to further buttress trilateral cooperation and initiated many of the current TCS’ brand projects. Based on their efforts, the current Board members have worked on the development and expansion of existing cooperative projects, and on enhancing the participation and influence of the TCS in the gamut of avenues for trilateral cooperation.

In November 2015, the 6th Trilateral Summit was held in Seoul after a three-and-a-half-year suspension, bringing forth new opportunities for trilateral cooperation. During the last year, the TCS has participated in 12 Ministerial Meetings including the first Trilateral Education Ministers’ Meeting and in more than 60 working level mechanisms, and has provided full support for the effective supplementation of the trilateral consultative mechanisms. We have made achievements in the expansion of existing cooperative projects, such as the International Forum for Trilateral Cooperation (IFTC) 2016 and the 1st Trilateral Forum on Public Diplomacy, and we have also put forward new projects in the areas of disaster management, logistics, environmental protection and local government exchange, for example, Workshop on “Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction,” Working Group Meeting of Joint Project “Trilateral Cooperation for Improvement of Supply Chain Connectivity (SCC),” Environmental Consultation Meeting on General Public Awareness Improvement and Ensemble Exchange Performed by the East Asian Cultural Cities. Meanwhile, the exchange and cooperation with other international organizations such as the Nordic Council of Ministers and the UN agencies has developed tremendously.

Over the last five years, we have shown how much we can accomplish through cooperation in diverse fields, namely finance, sustainable development, environment protection, tourism, cultural exchange, education, people-to-people exchange and disaster management. Nevertheless, we should never lose sight of how much further we can move forward, as much of the fertile ground for potential cooperation among the three countries has yet to be realized.

Moving forward, the TCS should continuously provide all the necessary support to the governments of our three countries. I myself, the two Deputy Secretary-Generals, and our officials and staff at the TCS will spare no effort to strengthen cooperation and continue contributing to cordial, cooperative, and future-oriented trilateral relations. I look forward to leading the TCS toward its mandates and visions in the coming year, and as such need your attention and support now more than ever.

HYUN In-Taek, Professor of Korea University and former Unification Minister of the ROK, participated in the opening session and delivered a keynote speech on the ways forward for Northeast Asian Community Building. The TCS, as a co-host of the conference, organized the discussion session in collaboration with the KFF, and TCS Secretary-General YANG Houlan welcomed the participants by sending a video message.
The TCS and the UNISDR’s Office for Northeast Asia and Global Education Training Institute (UNISDR ONEA-GETI) co-organized the Workshop on Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (SFDRR) in Seoul on March 3-4, 2016. Officials from China, the ROK, Japan and Mongolia participated in the workshop. This workshop is a follow-up project of the 4th Trilateral Ministerial Meeting on Disaster Management held in October 2015, with a view to promoting the implementation of SFDRR and strengthening capacity building of government officials. During the workshop, experts from UNISDR ONEA-GETI gave lectures on SFDRR and conducted case studies on the implementation of SFDRR. All delegations did presentations on the implementation of SFDRR in their respective countries as well as lessons they learned from recent disasters. They also did preliminary review and analysis of their national plans for DRR using the draft “Sendai Monitor” and exchanged views on government’s role in implementing SFDRR.

The three countries also shared their experience and lessons learned from the international rescue operation in Nepal Earthquake 2015. Highlighting that there is a greater need for disaster management cooperation in Northeast Asia, all participants attached importance to continuously developing the TTX. The three countries agreed to conduct the next TTX in 2017 in Japan.
