The TCS presents the 5th report titled “2015-2016 Progress Report of the Trilateral Cooperation,” covering the period from May 2015 to April 2016.
INTRODUCTION

During the period between May 2015 and April 2016, the three countries have vigorously pushed forward the trilateral cooperation in various areas.

First and foremost, on the occasion of the 6th Trilateral Summit, the leaders of the three countries declared the complete restoration of the trilateral cooperation, and adopted the Joint Declaration for Peace and Cooperation in Northeast Asia. In the Declaration, the leaders reaffirmed that the Trilateral Summit is to be held on a regular basis, and shared the view that the creation of a Trilateral Cooperation Fund (TCF) will be instrumental for the development of trilateral cooperation projects. They also reached a consensus on further cooperation in the areas of agriculture, customs, economy and trade, education, and environment, for which joint statements were issued respectively after the Summit. Breaking a three-and-a-half year hiatus, the Summit has breathed new momentum into the trilateral cooperation.

The three countries continued to strengthen cooperation in the field of non-traditional security including disaster management and nuclear safety, and exchanged views through a series of policy consultations on regional and international issues.

The three countries advanced economic cooperation by concluding the 7th to 10th rounds of the CJK FTA negotiations. Other ministerial meetings such as the Trilateral Economic and Trade Ministers’ Meeting, Trilateral Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors’ Meeting, the Tripartite Governors’ Meeting among the Central Banks, the Tripartite Customs Heads’ Meeting and the Trilateral Policy Dialogue among the Commissioners of the Property/Patent Offices were also held during the period.

Some remarkable progress was achieved with regard to environmental protection and sustainable development. Major regional environment issues were addressed during the 18th Trilateral Environment Ministers’ Meeting. The three countries have also joined hands to foster sound development in the areas of agriculture, fisheries, health and welfare, and the arctic affairs.

Furthermore, the three countries enhanced the measures for forging deeper ties among the peoples. The Trilateral Education Ministers’ Meeting has been newly established and the CAMPUS Asia Program took off as a full-fledged project. In addition to the Trilateral Culture Ministers’ Meeting and the Heads of Personnel Authorities Meeting, various cooperative projects related to tourism, local government exchanges, think-tank network and youth exchanges were conducted among the three countries.

1. Joint Declaration for Peace and Cooperation in Northeast Asia

We, the Leaders of the Republic of Korea, Japan and the People's Republic of China, convened in Seoul, Korea on November 1, 2015, on the occasion of the Sixth Trilateral Summit.

We appreciated that trilateral cooperation, since its inception in 1999, has developed through the regular holding of the Trilateral Summits in the three countries since 2008, independently from the ASEAN+3 Summit; that such cooperation has been further institutionalized through the establishment of the Trilateral Cooperation Secretariat (TCS) in 2011; and that there has been progress towards the realization of the visions set forth in the Joint Declarations/Statements of the Leaders of the three countries, including Trilateral Cooperation VISION 2020.

Acknowledging that steady progress has been made in trilateral cooperation in various areas despite fluid situations in the Northeast Asian region in recent years, we shared the view that trilateral cooperation has been completely restored on the occasion of this Summit, held almost three and a half years after the Fifth Trilateral Summit held in May 2012. Shinzo Abe, Prime Minister of Japan, and Li Keqiang, Premier of the State Council of the People’s Republic of China, expressed appreciation for the efforts made by Park Geun-hye, President of the Republic of Korea, the chair country, to restore trilateral cooperation during the past years.

We reached the common recognition that the situation in which economic interdependence and political/security tensions coexist must be overcome in order to build permanent peace, stability and co-prosperity in the region, and to continue to develop trilateral cooperation unwaveringly.

To this end, we came to the recognition that respective bilateral ties among the three countries constitute an important foundation for trilateral cooperation, and that the deepening of trilateral cooperation, in turn, contributes to each bilateral relations and to the peace, stability, and prosperity of the Northeast Asian region. In the spirit of facing history squarely and advancing towards the future, we agreed that the three countries should address related issues properly and to work together to improve bilateral relations and to strengthen trilateral cooperation.
